

The following articles included in this month's DITTO magazine make interesting reading. A summary of the content is included here:

CHILDRENS RIGHTS: Did you know there was very little in place to protect children's rights in the digital world up until now. Big changes recently are trying to correct this. There is some way to go still, with American legislation dating back to 1996 allowing big IT companies to do what they want.

DIGITAL FOOTPRINT: George Orwell wrote about 'Big Brother' is watching in his dystopian novel 1984. A Digital Footprint would have been a dream come true for this Orwellian character. This article clarifies what is meant by a digital footprint and how important it is for us to keep this under our control. GDPR legislation recently has curtailed a lot of more suspect uses of a digital footprint but you should still be aware of what is going on.

YOUTUBE - SUPERVISED EXPERIENCE: This article deals with YouTube Kids - the App. New developments by YouTube to allow users to control and filter content is under planning.
